The 31st Annual
Federal 100

The 31st Annual Federal 100

Welcome to the 2020 Federal 100 Awards Gala

The Federal 100 awards are for the federal IT community, but they have never been about the tech or the procurements. Federal 100 recognition is all about the people — outstanding individuals who deliver the mission, the program and the results in a single year.

For more than three decades, these awards have celebrated those talented women and men and the changes they are driving as public servants and as industry partners. The 2020 winners continue a long line of distinguished leaders who demonstrate that individuals can make a difference in the way government successfully brings programs and services to all. This is a collection of remarkable achievers, and these awards continue to be the gold standard for recognizing what works at the intersection of government and technology.

This year's awardees come from across government, and from companies large and small. They come from down the street and across the country. And they personify the fresh approaches to problem solving and the spirit of dedication and accountability that are transforming how government connects with its constituents.

As the news of recent days has reminded us, government always faces challenges — but this community is rich in the talent and tenacity needed to tackle them.

So please join me in celebrating the 2020 Federal 100 and the lasting contributions they make to the federal IT community.

The 31st Annual Federal 100

Federal 100

In recognition of those individuals who have made a difference in the federal information technology arena during 2019, FCW is proud to present the 31th annual Federal 100 Awards. The winners are nominated by the FCW audience for their contributions to the development, acquisition or management of federal IT. Winners are recognized for excellence in producing better programs and purchasing quality IT products, enabling the federal government to better serve its citizens.

The Eagle Awards

The Eagle award winners – one from government and one from industry – are the best-in-class, individuals whose contributions are felt throughout the federal IT community. These winners are chosen from the Federal 100 by a second committee of former Eagle winners and industry luminaries, people who know what it takes to perform at such a high level.
