

Ace the Day

Microsoft + acer

As a teacher, the only thing you can really expect to happen each day is the unexpected—little moments of hilarity (what did that kid just say?), accidental messes, and all that comes with teaching children of different behaviors and learning styles.

While that element of surprise will probably always be there, here's how your day can be a little less chaotic with Microsoft and Acer technology at your side.

1:00 AM

Wake up in a panic. Did you plan a starter lesson for your second class?

Remember it's all organized in OneNote Class Notebook and drift back off into a peaceful slumber.

7:15 AM

Check your email. See requests for feedback from colleagues, questions about class performance from the principal, and a reminder that there's an assembly today. Great.

Take a deep breath. Reach out to everyone through Microsoft Teams. Chat quickly and effectively, then get on to the next to-do.

7:25 AM

Realize you need 200 worksheets made before the day's lessons start. Glare at the photocopier hopelessly.

Remember you can scan documents with your phone using Microsoft Office Lens. Distribute worksheets to students' Acer TravelMate B1s with the click of a button. Voilà!

10:37 AM

Deliver a lesson to your most challenging class where every student has a different skill level and learning capability.

Do it all without breaking a sweat by using the Ink math assistant. Quickly conduct customized lessons and use Microsoft Forms to create quizzes and track progress.

12:02 PM

Head to the staff room to quickly eat lunch. See a student walking out into the rain with their laptop.

Almost run to stop them but remember that the Acer TravelMate Spin B1 they're holding can handle 330 milliliters of liquid (equivalent to a cup of coffee). Back to break time!

2:50 PM

Last-lesson syndrome. Kids are at peak distraction.

Use Minecraft: Education Edition to turn lessons into games that keep their attention through the day.

Uh-oh. Someone got too excited and knocked a laptop off a desk. Good thing those Acer TravelMate Spin B1s are also made with military-grade durability.

4:00 PM

Staff training session. These usually go nowhere—everyone is tired, can't agree, or feels like they've tried every teaching method already.

Sign in to the Microsoft Educator Community instead. Connect with educators around the world and see how they use technology in their classrooms.

8:03 PM

Home from work, but there's still work to do.

At least there are no more stacks of papers to drag home, because they're all in your OneNote Class Notebook. Breeze through grading with digital ink, or even audio notes. Go to bed feeling accomplished and looking forward to doing what you love all over again tomorrow.

Make each day easier for you and more fun for your students. Contact your representative to find the right solution for your classroom.

Try free trials of tools and resources just for educators like you at <http://aka.ms/iwantoffice365>

Microsoft + acer